Cookies

Some areas of the Website may use cookies, i.e. small text files sent to the User's computer, identifying the User as it is needed to simplify or terminate a particular operation. These files are stored on the Website User's end device and are intended for using the Website's pages. Cookies usually contain the name of the website they come from, the storage time on the end device and a unique number.

Cookies are harmless to the computer, its User and User's data.

A condition for the operation of cookies is their acceptance by the browser and that they not be removed from the drive. Using the site without changing the settings for cookies means that these cookies will be placed on Your end device. You can change your cookie settings at any time. These settings can be changed in particular in such way as to block the automatic handling of cookies in the web browser settings or to inform about their every posting on the Website User's device. Detailed information on the possibilities and methods of handling cookies is available in the software (web browser) settings.

Cookies are used for the following purposes:

- adjust the content of the Website pages to the User's preferences and optimize the use of websites; in particular, these files help recognize the Website User's device and properly display the website adjusted to the User's individual needs,
- generate statistics that help understand how Website Users use websites, which allows their structure and content to be improved,
- maintain the Website User's session (after logging in), thanks to which the User does not have to re-enter the login and password on each subpage of the Website.

The following types of cookies are used within the Website:
